SUBMISSIONS

1: Adan Karro - New Name & New Device

Azure, on a bend argent three mascles azure

Submitter desires a masculine name.

No changes.

Spelling most important.

Adan is a male Spanish given name found in familysearch records dated to 1591 which is within the 500 year acceptable range

Karro is a Spanish surname dated to 1143 and 1153, found in Melcon, p. 278

Conflicts with Lark Bonamy (reg. Aug 2013 via Lochac): Azure, on a bend argent three martlets azure. There's a single DC, for type of tertiary charges.

DEVICE RETURNED for conflict

2: Antonio Bondi - New Name & New Device

Quarterly azure and sable, in pale a jester's cap and in saltire two pens argent

No preferences indicated

Antonio is found in "A Listing of all Men's Given Names from the Condado Section of the Florence Catasto of 1427".

Bondi is found twice in "A Listing of All Names Given as Patronyms from the Condado Section of the Florence Catasto of 1427".

Both are part of the same article, "Names in 15th Century Florence and her Dominions: the Condado" by Juliana de Luna. Appendix A of SENA notes that unmarked patronymics is an acceptable pattern in Italian.

Docs by Jeanne Marie Blue Mountain

We have a recent ruling that the quill pen is the default heraldic pen. Adding punctuation and fixing spelling, we reblazon: Quarterly azure and sable, in pale a jester's cap and in saltire two pens argent.

Charges arranged in saltire were explicitly exempted from UoP requirements, on the Cover Letter of June 2013.

Given the period examples, we are overturning past precedent forbidding the combination of a charge and two other charges in saltire, or other similar combinations. We will henceforth treat a pair of charges in saltire and a sheaf of charges as a single unit only for purposes of arrangement under SENA A3D2c. As always, the entire charge group must be in a blazonable period arrangement, such as two and one, in fess, in cross, etc.

3: Arnóra Bestingr - New Name

No preferences indicated

Arnóra is a feminine Norse given name found in Geirr Bassi, p. 7

Bestinger is a descriptive Norse byname meaning "captive bear", found in Geirr Bassi, p. 20

FIXME: As noted in the Calontir 07-27-2017 LOI – “Lind, Personbinamn, col. 21 sn. Bestingr, notes there's only one e in the byname [bestingr vice bestinger], suggesting that the spelling in GB may be a typo.” Name changed in the meeting to reflect this.

4: Atticus Carver - New Name & New Device

Azure, perched on a wheel a bird Or, a bordure compony gules and argent

Submitter desires a masculine name.

Atticus is a male English given name found at familysearch.org,

Atticus Cradge, christening, May 23, 1584 Leicester, England Batch C03691-Z

The bird is clearly secondary; we are just unsure on how to properly designate this in blazon.

6: Caid, Kingdom of - New Order Name & New Badge

Order of the Furison of Caid

Azure, a furison and a bordure embattled argent

No preferences indicated

This Order name follows the pattern of "Order of (Heraldic Charge)" found in "Medieval Secular Order Names" by Juliana de Luna (<http://medievalscotland.org/jes/OrderNames/>).

A furison is a period heraldic charge.

A furison is a fire steel, used with flint to strike sparks for starting fires. It is also blazoned a "ferris" in mundane heraldry. The furison is a period charge, found in the arms of Grassawer, c.1340 [Zurich 237]; but its most famous usage is as a badge of the Order of the Golden Fleece, c.1430. It is fesswise by default, with its flat edge (its "steel") to base. (<http://misholme.com/dictionary/furison/>)

The designator "of Caid" was added to avoid conflict (per SENA NPN.3.E) with the personal heraldic title "Furison Herald" registered to James of the Lake (Dec 2004); even though he has kindly provided permission to conflict. It does not conflict with "Furisine of Stonemarche, Order of the" (Feb 2008); "of Stonemarche" is part of the substantive element and thus provides sufficient difference.

This is clear of "Vert, a furison and a bordure urdy argent" (Kathrine de Laine, Feb 1994, Ansteorra). There is one DC for the change of tincture of the field, and one DC for the change of urdy (a "Wavy" type complex line) to embattled (a "Square" type, according to SENA, Appendix M).

It is also clear of "(Fieldless) A furison argent" (Basileios Philanthropenos Philomathes, Oct 2000, Meridies). There is one DC for fieldlessness and another for the addition/removal of the bordure.

7: Caitlin inghean Sheamuis - New Name & New Device

Per bend sinister Or and purple, a dragon and a decrescent counterchanged

Submitter desires a feminine name.

Client requests authenticity for 12-14 C. Irish.

Language (12-14 C. Irish) most important.

Culture (12-14 C. Irish) most important.

Contacted submitter about change and was approved it, included full documentation

Caitilin While there is fairly wide variation, the standard spelling is either ingen (pre-1200) or inghean (post-1200). Which depends on the date of the name. The submitter is requesting authenticity in a period where Middle Irish is becoming Early Modern Irish. As the given name is Early Modern Irish Gaelic, the patronymic should likewise be in Early Modern Irish Gaelic to meet her authenticity request (which Séamus is).

The source for Caitlin is Mari Elspeth nic Bryan's "Index of Names in Irish Annals". The form given on the article page is Caitilín. Dropping the accents is allowed and doesn't affect authenticity. Caitilin is found in 1411, 1471, 1486, 1490, 1506, 1527, 1530, 1568, 1582, 1592. None of these are early enough to meet the submitter's desired period.

Séamus is also found in Mari's Annals article (<https://medievalscotland.org/kmo/AnnalsIndex/Masculine/Seamus.shtml>) where it is dated to 1398, 1405, 1448, 1463, 1467, 1484, 1486, 1502, 1511, 1519, 1567, 1581, 1608. The genitive form is Séamuis. The name must also be lenited, giving Shéamuis (or Sheamuis without accents).

The form of patronymic marker would generally be inghean in this time period. Thus, Caitlin inghean Sheamuis (assuming she intends to drop the accents). It's registerable. It's authentic for 15th-16th Irish, and probably authentic for late 14th C given how early in the 15th C then names are found. No conflicts found

8: Celeste Ballatini - New Name

No preferences indicated

"Celeste" would be the expected French feminine form for any time from the 10th century onward. It is rare but apparently remained in occasional use - EG Withycombe

- Withycombe sn. Celeste "There was a St. Celesta, who no doubt sponsored the name, which is not uncommon in France. <Celestine>, which also occurs, is probably a diminutive of <Celeste> and not taken from the papal name <Celestinus>. <Celeste> and <Celestine> are occasionally used in England."

16: Gunther Rise - New Device Change

Per bend Or and sable, a calamarie maintaining in chief a trident reversed counterchanged, a chief wavy sable

Old Item: Or, a calamarie and a chief wavy sable, to be retained as a badge.

We believe this follows the outlines on Calamarie from May 2015 cover letter:

A precedent from 2012 states:

The tentacles of a polypus should be to base, not both to base and to chief, as we grant difference for tentacles to base, as with a polypus, versus tentacles to chief, as with a calamarie. [James Bacon, 12/12, R-West]

This precedent seems to be occasionally misinterpreted as meaning that a correct depiction would have the tentacles pointing towards the base for a polypus and towards the chief for a calamarie. This is incorrect. The intent is to render the orientation unambiguous and thus the tentacles should be arranged in both cases around the section of the cephalopod that is opposite the head, with less than half going over the midsection and none going further than the head itself.

This name uses documentation from Names from Demotic Egyptian Sources 2nd Edition by Daniel L Lind (Sneferu sa Djedi mewetif Merit) and Trismegistos an interdisciplinary portal of papyrological and epigraphical resources.

<http://heraldry.sca.org/kwhss/2016/Egyptian%20Names%20from%20Demotic%20Sources%202nd%20edition%20draft%203.pdf>

<http://www.trismegistos.org/index.html>

imeywenewt - Prepended demotic Egyptian occupational byname meaning "astronomer." This byname is documented in demotic between Dec 22, 365 BC and Aug 18, 243 BC on page 5 of the abovementioned article. A prepended demotic Egyptian occupational byname has already been registered as Sekhet Nanefrenpet (June 2017 LOAR, Meridies). The success of that submission may inform this one.

<https://oscar.sca.org/index.php?action=145&id=74173> Occupational bynames in late Egyptian occur independently of other patterns used in the name. They almost always prepend the given name of the person to whom they belong.

From the June 2017 LOAR:

We previously ruled that "Egyptian names recorded in Common Demotic script and Coptic are compatible with our period under GP3A of SENA." [Einarr inn kristni Hákonsson. Alternate name Imhotep sa Maare mewetif Ankhet, 7/2015 LoAR, A-Artemisia] As this name was documented entirely from Demotic Egyptian sources, it is registerable under this precedent.

The submitter requested authenticity for "Egyptian." Although this name was documented entirely from Demotic Egyptian sources, the attested dates for the name elements are not within the same century. Thus, this name is registerable, but it is not authentic for a specific time.

Pattern - The pattern <given name> s3.t ne (sat ne) <fathers given name> is documented in demotic between Aug 23, 259 BC and Aug 18 243 BC on page 3 of the abovementioned article.

Tasheretnut - Constructed female given name meaning "The daughter of Nut" based on the pattern T3-šr.t- + <Divine Name>. In this case, the divine name is Nut; the Egyptian goddess of the sky. This pattern is established in the names T3-šr.t-mnh.t, T3-šr.t-Mnt, T3-šr.t-twt, T3-šr.t-Wsir, and T3-šr.t-Wsir-Bh on page 9 of the abovementioned article. The divine name nw.t is documented in demotic as part of the name P3-rmt-nw.t meaning "The man of Nut" on Feb 23, 175 BC in Trismegistos.

The conflict is registered to the submitter, identical to this submission but with domestic cats in place of lions. In internal commentary, Jeanne Marie Blue Mountain provided:

“It is a blazonable difference, which is sufficient to allow registration:

... there is a blazonable difference, though no CDs, between this badge and her device. That difference would be sufficient for someone else to register this armory with a letter of permission to conflict. Therefore that blazonable difference is also sufficient for the submitter to register both pieces of armory. [Niamh ingen Maolán, 10/2005, A-Æthelmearc]

And his current badge does have domestic cats, not lions.”

We might also consider: Per bend sinister sable and argent, a wolf rampant and an ounce rampant contourny, each charged with a thistle, all counterchanged. That gets our primary charges blazoned first, as they should be.

The form was labelled as per bend sinister azure and argent, but colored as sable. We are checking with the submitter which is the intended color.

"In some languages, what appears to be two given names in a row is actually the name of an individual followed immediately by that of his or her father, without any of the usual "markers" which indicate that the name is a patronym, such as -son, mac, ap, etc. This does not occur in Arabic; one always finds the particles ibn (son of) or bint (daughter of) in the nasab."
