7: Zoriza de Ponente - New Name

Zorzia is a late period constructed Italian given name.

<https://medievalscotland.org/jes/Nuns/Venice.shtml> Comments found in Late Period Italian Women's Names: Venice by Juliana de Luna talk about Gi or Ci transposition to Z in the initial letter of names.

The names here reflect a few trends typical of the northern dialect spoken in Venice. Names that in modern Italian would start with Gi- or Ci- often start with Z-. Zaneta and Zuana are forms of Gianna, which is a variant of Giovanna. Similarly, Zilia is a form of Cecilia.

Additional info on g to z switch within a name is found in Names from Sixteenth Century Venice by Juliana de Luna <https://www.s-gabriel.org/names/juliana/16thcvenice.html>

Some of the names are distinctly Venetian in form, with z taking the place of a soft g: Zuan instead of Giani, Anzola instead of Angela. The letter j is also found in this location, perhaps reflecting outside influences: Julia and Jacomina in addition to Giulia and Iacomina.

Giorgia is a late period Italian feminine given name found in familysearch records <https://www.familysearch.org/ark:/61903/1:1:XQPM-1BBM?lang=en>

Manfre La Chichia Marriage 8 Oct 1570 Militello in Val di Catania, Catania, Sicilia, Italia <https://www.familysearch.org/ark:/61903/1:1:XQPM-1BBM?lang=en>

Note: The submitter researched the gi ci and g to z herself. I just put the bits together.

Ponente as an actual locative near or part of Genoa and generic "of the west" is found dated to 1613 on the map from Historic Map - Riviera Di Genova Da Ponente/Maps of The Italian Riviera, from Nice to Genoa, Extending North to Turin, 1613, Giovanni Antonio Magini <https://oscar.sca.org/s.php?u=2302195> [www.gettyimages.com]
